1. WHAT ARE COOKIES

A cookie is a text file containing small amounts of information which is downloaded to your device when you access a website. The text file is then sent back to our server each time your browser requests a page from the server. This enables us to operate our website more effectively and load our website in such a way as to reflect your personal preferences based on your previous browsing on our website, as well as keywords we may be able to gather from URLs of webpages from which you accessed our website.

2. WHAT COOKIES DO WE USE

2.1 We use the following cookies:

(a) Analytical and performance cookies

We may use analytics service providers for website traffic analysis and reporting. Analytics service providers generate statistical and other information about the use of our website by using cookies. They allow us to recognise and count the number of visitors and to see how often visitors return to our website, how long they stay and how visitors move around our website when they are using it. This helps us to improve the way our website works, for example, by ensuring that users are finding what they are looking for easily. The information generated relating to our website may be used to create reports about the use of our website and the analytics service provider will also store this information.

(b) Advertising and targeting cookies

These cookies record your visit to our website, the pages you have visited and the links you have followed to other websites. We will use this information to try and make our website and other websites that you visit more relevant to your interests. We may also share this information with others, such as other Company group companies (and carefully selected third parties for this purpose).

(c) Functionality cookies

We may use functional cookies that allow us to remember choices you have made in relation to our website so as to provide a more personalised experience and enhanced user experience by delivering content specific to your interests.

(d) Strictly necessary cookies

These are cookies that are required for the administration and operation of our website. Some cookies that we use are necessary for our website to function properly and to enable you to move around our website and use its features.

(e) Third party cookies

We try and make it easy to share content and to see what content is popular on those networks. We add buttons to allow people to easily share to those networks. When we include these social 'plugins', it gives those sites the flexibility to use cookies. They can't read any cookies we set from our website, and we can't read any cookies they set, but it lets them do the same sort of traffic measuring that we do on the rest of our website, and it also lets them know whether you're logged in. Other websites and services (including, for example, advertising networks, providers of external services like web traffic analysis services and content recommendation engines) may also use cookies, over which we have no control. These cookies are likely to be analytical/performance cookies or targeting cookies.

- 2.2 You can find more information about the individual cookies we use and the purposes for which we use them in the table below:
